PROPOSED CHANGES FOR BETTERING THE CONDITION OF ENLISTED MEN.

IMPORTANT COMMANDS AFLOAT SOON TO BE

Washington, Sept. 9.-The military authorities have ntemplation several changes of law and regupropositions are important. All have in view perience has shown that much of the recent legison of Congress has failed of its object, and in a few instances, at least, the reverse of the expected results has followed. This can also be said of many spance of law. Besides the contemplated changes of the Retained-pay law and a modification of or-hes concerning the purchase of discharges, delibon the part of the authorities at present reto the abolition of post schools and general o commanding officers or the men, generally that the soldiers might be taught the rudimentary The men resented the idea of attending. to be filled, and there is much speculation among navai officers as to who will be selected for the duties. As stated in these dispatches, the Minolis, Olympia, Boston and Marion will be ready be put into commission by November 1. It is perning the selection of captains of these vesse's that speculation is going on. An officer of the grade captain will be assigned to the Minneapolts, and officers. Those most prominently named for the duty are Captain E. M. Shepard, commanding the eiving-ship Minnesota; Captain H. C. Taylor, sident of the Naval War College, and Captain H Wadleigh, inspector of ordnance at the Bos-Navy Yard. Captain Shepard is the senior of ton Navy Yard. Captain Shepard is the sensor the the three officers. He has had no sea service in his present grade, having completed his last cruise as a commander in 1891. His tour of three years on the Minnesota will not expire for some time. Neither Captains Taylor nor Wadleigh has had any service probabilities seem to point to Captain Wadleigh as the officer to be selected for the swift cruiser. He is regarded as a thoroughly efficient officer. Inin the selection of the Olympia's captain is will be the most important command of the heavy battery, and in service is expected to make a good showing. Captain Read, commanding the receiving ship Independence, is supposed to be her mander. He has recently been promoted, His presence on the Pacific Coast is in his favor, as there would be no travel expense attaching to his has applied for the sea service, is mentioned ost prominently. His last sea service was on the shortly before that vessel was wrecked. As captain of the Marion Commander Ide, who comleted his last cruise in 1889, and Commander Stockto was last affoat in 1891, are spoken of.

This week's "Army and Navy Register" publishes interesting information relating to promotion om the ranks in the army. Under the law, noncommissioned officers and privates may become commissioned officers upon passing prescribed examinations. Recently a large number of intelligent young Americans, of high social standing, have entered the ranks with the hope of becoming second lieutenants. The sons of a number of officers of the army have also enlisted with the same object in view. Reports are in circulation that many of these aspirants are to be disappointed, and that hereafter aspirants are to be disappranted at there will be very few advancements from the ranks. Concerning these reports "The Register" ranks. Concerning these reports "The Register" says in part:

An examination of the records relating to the retirement of commissioned officers, and taking into consideration the casualties which will occur from other caused, show that this view of the outlook is erroneous. Within the next ten years—that is, from September, 1894, to September, 1994—there will be an unusually large number of retirements in the compaissioned grades of the Army. The number will exceed 500. This means an average of fifty vacancies annually from this source alone. It is not probable that the West Point graduates of each year will exceed fifty. From casualties, such as death, dismissal and resignation, the probable number of vacancies will be twenty-five. Of these twenty-five vacancies it seems reasonable to suppose that fifteen or twenty will be filled by commissioning enflisted men. This would still leave five or ten vacancies which the President could fill by appointment from civil life. Altogether, therefore, we should say there is no good reason for discouraging the enlistment of young men who go into the Army with the hope of getting commissions. Of course, some of this class will meet with disappointment, but a reasonably large number will annually get their shoulder straps. In a few years, when the retirements on account of age will remove from the active list the very large number of officers who are not meaning the age of sixty-four, the vacancies in the commissioned grades will be very much more nitmerous, and during that pariod an unusually large pumber of appointments from the ranks can be counted upon.

Reports to the Navy Department show that progress in the way of naval construction has reached point where two monitors are nearly ready for service. The big guns mounts are in place. The secondary battery, which can be fitted in short order, is ready to be put on board. The machinery is ready for trial, and good results are expected from the engines and boilers. Construction work is somewhat behind, but Commodore Hichborn, who has great faith in the monitor type as coast defence vessels, will make all speed in his department, as circumstances will warrant. Some slight delay may follow the installation of the pneumatic system on the Terror. The other monitor, the Amphitrite, building at Norfolk, ought to be ready soon after the Terror. She will prove a valuable adjunct to the shore defences of the country. She is of 3,990 tons displacement, with a speed of about twelve knots. Her turrets are 7% inches thick and her barbettes 11% inches in thickness. She is to carry four 19-inch guns and two 4-inch rapid-fire guns, besides a heavy secondary battery. There is little of the vessel's armor undeflivered, the conning tower plates, which are to be Harveyized, being the principal exceptions. The big guns are in place, and the smaller rifles are ready to be mounted. which can be fitted in short order, is ready to be

OLD SOLDIERS POUR INTO PILTSBURG

SCENE OF THE ANNUAL ENCAMPMENT. Pittsburg. Sept. 9.-The arriving hosts of the 'Grand Army played havoe to-day with Pittsburg's 'reputation as a latter-day champion of the Puritan Sabbath. In the morning the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner," "Marching Through Georgia" and "Auld Lang Syne" pealed forth by brass bands, mingled with the chimes of Old Trinity as they summoned the worshippers, while it is to be that many a pulpit exhortation was temporarily drowned to-night by the cheers of the populace in greeting the boys in blue from Eastern points. The inpour began soon after daybreak, when a Pennsylvania train of six sections brought in the advance guard of delegations from California, Montana, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. Notwithstanding the early hour a detachment of the National Guard, with an ample representaion of the Citizens' Reception Committee, was in to their respective headquarters with honors and

State, at which time, in consequence of the apprehensions entertained of a conflict with Great Britain, the President recommended serious preparations of both offence and defence at Whetstone Point, which the Legislature of Maryland at its session in December, 1794, had placed at the disposal of the Federal Government.

The plans of this work were originally prepared by John Jacob Ulrich Rivardi, a Frenchman, acting as engineer in the service of the United States, and embraced a lower battery, an upper battery and a star fort. Work was begun immediately, but it was not completed until about 1803. As completed in 1803 the work consisted of a regular five sided bastioned fortification with exterior batteries, magazines and barracks. This fortification, which was named Fort McHenry in honor of James McHenry of Baltimore, the first Secretary of War under Washington, remained without the doing of lar trains were packed with visitors, although the

the British to take the city of Baltimore by land, a bombardment of Fort McHenry was commenced by the fleet under Admiral Cockburn on September 13, 1814. The fort was under the immediate command of Lieutenant-Colonel George Armistead. His force consisted of one company of United States Artillery and two of Sea Fencibles, three ides a detachment from Commodore Barney's sides a detachment from Commodore Barney's flotilla. The bombardment, which was heavy, lested until 7 o'clock the following morning, at which time the enemy retired with a loss about twice as great as that of the Americans. It was luring the night of Sentember 13, in the heat of the bombardment, that Francis Scott Key, the author, lawyer and poet, who was detained a prisoner in the British fleet, whither he had gone under the protection of a flag of truce to effect the release of some captured friends, composed the patriotic song of the "Star Spangled Banner."

After the second war with Great Britain the fort was constantly garrisoned until May 29, 1836, when in pursuance of G. O. Few veterans of National reputation came in to-day. General Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, was an early arrival. So was Private Daizell, of Ohio, and Corporal Tanner got in from Washington in time for supper. Mrs. Sarah C. Mink and Mrs. Sarah C. Burtsell celebrated the mass in person, with the Rev. James Coffey as deacon, and the Rev. M. J. Fitzpatrick as sub-deacon. In place of the usual sermon Dr. Burtsell gave a reminiscent address, in which he related the feelings and impressions caused by the sacred scenes in the Holy Land he had visited.

This afternoon exercises of welcome were held in the Opera House. Short addresses of welcome were made by Acting Mayor Hamburger in behalf of the city, Vice-President Betts, of the Board of Hospital Managers, of which Dr. Burtsell is president, and Mr. Salzman, for the Board of Trade. Dr. Burtsell made a feeling response.

The Rev. J. J. Gallagher, who has been officiating at St. Mary's during Dr. Burtsell's absence by Archbishop Corrigan's appointment, was not present to-day, and has been missed from town since yesterday.
